

ABSTRACT

The present invention relates to humanized antibodies binding to CD47; diabodies binding to human CD47,
5 characterized in that a disulfide bond exists between diabody-forming fragments; genes encoding any one of said antibodies; vectors containing said genes; host cells containing said vectors; processes for preparing antibodies comprising the step of culturing said host cells; and 10 therapeutic agents for hematological disorders comprising said antibodies.